The Confederate States Loan in Europe. LATEST BY TELEGRAPH. NEW ADVERTISEMENTS

lishing a Confederacy independent of the United States government is not so chimerical as Northern statesmen and Northern senators would have us believe, the negotiations of this loan abundantly prove. There must be many who believe that the Southern Confederacy will not enly establish its independence, but that it will not repudiate its debts, or, etherwise three millions of money would not be lent, even on the ing a quantity of pewder that communicated with her substantial security which is offered in the shares magazine and caused the explosion. The Distra is re-
